Amendments of the Constitution. OLASS THISE, HYDDOMRERS, THERMOMETERS It is a remarkable fact, says the Detroit Adver-tiser, that of the twelve amendments of the Constitution of the United States made prior to the rebellion, not one was submitted to the President of the United States for his approval. Ten of them were proposed by the first Congress at its first session, and President Washington, at the request of that body, transmitted the amend request of that body, craisinflet at a ments to the State Everytives, without dropping the striptest fait that they ought to have been we prapage to keep a full stock of goods in our line, and self them ment, which was also transmitted by Washington to the Governors of the several States without a word of protest. In 1803 the twelthamendment was proposed by Congress, and President Jeffer son, at its request, transmitted that amendment son, at its request, transmitted that antendment to the Gevenners of the States, without objection of clock last evening in assemblage numbering what reduces his action more significant, is that a resolution to subuilt the amendment to the President was voted down in the Senate. These special conditions to the dispute of the United States are popularly supposed to have known something in regard to the meaning of the Constitution which one of the them helped to frame. If they regarded the action of Congress as unconstitutional it is rather than the converse of the state of the constitution and the results of several bandred dollars was betom this affort, which we will have now to be which are. F. N. PACE & CO., HARDWARE MERCHANTS, them helped to frame. If they regard the tilen of Congress as unconstitutional it is rather singular that they did not refuse to transmit the proposed ancadments to the State Executive proposed ancadments to the State Executive proposed ancadments.

r at least scoul Congress in a "brevet veto" after It is rather queer that so well read a law yer a ecretary Seward should have permitted the Presidential scold to besse a manifesto which oves so plainly not merely his ignorance of the Constitution, but his ignorance of the Inter predation of that instrument given by the Su-preme Cour. of the United States. In 1798 the ralidity of the eleventh amondment of the Conditution was contested before the Supreme Court, on the ground that it had not been mitted to the President for his approval. But the Court deemed the point so weak that they over-ruled it, without listening to an argument gainst it by the Attorney General. In Bunjau's "Filgrim's Progress" allusion is made to a giant who had become so feeble that he could do nothing but sit at the gates of his castle and make taces at the pilgrims who passed by it on their way to the Celestial City | The last message of President Johnson is an exhibition of much the same kind. Not being able to prevent the Radicals from going by him, he sits at the door of the White House and makes faces at hem, and his message is an excellent photograph

My propositions suggest a compromise between extrements. No man, of what complexion

The Southern people would do well to been and act upon such counsel as this.

The Chicago Fost gives an account of a quack denter who was brought to the witness stand in one of the courts of that city, and appeared so profoundly ignorant of the science of medicine, that some inquiries were made as to bis career and method of practice, which caused some carious revolutions. The Robbery of the Howdolmham Bank.

From the Boston Traveller.

A merchani of this city, who happened to be in Bowdolmham, Maine, on the day of the robbery of the bank here, has kindly hernished us with some particulars not yet published. The bank is situated in a building by itself in the middle of the withage, and the Cashler, Mr. Robert Butterfield, resides about one hundred rould distant from it. The robbert placed a pitch plaster against a pane of glass in the lower part of his house, and squiting round it with a diamond, took out the pane without noise. They then went to his chamber, where he lay saleep with his eddest son, a boy of seven or eight years old. The first indication of their presques was a blow on his head with the butt of a platol, which partially stumed him, and a dem ind for "the keys." Almost billed and stargered by the blow, he relused to point out where they were Successive blows; followed upon his head, face and chest, till the pillows are a mass of blood. Thinking they would kill him, he flushly eave them the keys. They then produced a new of the day, taking off the bloody pillow cases, which they used as a gag, tying it tight into its mouth, which hery forced open, so he could make no manner, but not so tightly. The only other pensons in the house were Mrs. B. and a sick infant manner, but not so tightly. The child was taken some un me nouse were area. D. and a sick inlant in an adjoining chamber. Her child was taken trom her, she was tied and gugged tightly, and then her barly hid beside her. They then went to the bank and opened the outer doors, but the inner safe delied their efforts. Two of the secondrels then returned to the house, rolesson Mr. B.'s hands and feet, and putting a pistol to his head and eithing to the bank. They ordered him to open the safe, telling him, with tearful imprecations, if it was not opened whim sixty seconds, they should shoot him through the head.

My propositions suggest a tunipoints to tween extremists. No man, of what complexion soever, should be permitted to yole unless properly qualified; yet, so qualified, he, should vote, the he as black as Erebus. The proposed measure will admit but few freedmon—and those of a superior class—to the tranchise, and will exclude forever the vast body of ruffianism, whose just deathy is to be governed and not to govern. It think we will be infinite gainers by this plan. If we dolay, or persistently reluse the privilege of suffrage to them in this restricted form, we are likely to inversal suffrage granted to them by set of Congress. Give the blacks the qualified suffrage I singgest, and even force Thaddeus Stecens may relent.

incer am in its operation, and glycome is not sufficiently understood to be used with suffix There is a very sade means of meetersing the strength of guapower from twenty to five hun-died times and one which can never prove t fulure. The more instantian onely guapowder can be exploded the more powerful at becomes when a ton of gunpowder is exploded it takes a very considerable period of time before the whole of it is converted into gre, but if it were ignified in fear different places at the same in stant of time It would explode with four times melies in diameter and six feet long, filled with gunpowder, and through the centre of the small will increase the strength of the gunpowder to a der will ignite it twenty those quicker than a would ignite of itself, but as before serted per cussion powder should be realded if possible When a plating wire has a current of electricity instantaneously becomes white hot, and if brought into contact with kunpowder an explo-sion inhands stely is the result. For this purpose plating which is drawn out as time as a leafe, so he indeed that it more resembles the thread of spider's web Now, if a pitting wire of this thickness be passed through a sin tabe silled with gunpower, it will explode much more rap dis when electricity is passed through it than with crewed to any extent by colling the wire Inside The more plating wire could into the powder the more explosive will be become by this means the strength can be increased five hundred times nawnels very chern and much cherner when moliced in this manner than an additional well by

of gunpowder would be to became the noner So for as safely, power and economy are can arned, composite and electricity have the pref nence. Now, we will consider the practical up pilention of this, to opening the lissures of of wells. Factin tube should be constructed of diameter that will admit of its casily entering the well without the possibility of clogging and of a length from one foot to ten or longer, it neces suy The inside must be conted with a non-conductor of electrics—such as a thin conting of gutta percha dissolved in ether, efflorofolm apthor or other solvent, for preventing the cur rent of electricity being broken by the plating wire coming in contact with the tin, which is conductor. One end of the tube should be so dered on with ordinary solder, the other should of the same shape, through the top and bottom of Miss stories and Miss Hard on others which must be an aperture large enough to all fits Avery'n garden, were destined to wire. The plating wire must be noticed both lo flu top pe bottom wire and coiled in with the powder to my length required. The holes in the the lid. The torpedo is now ready for use. Two who on the bottom of the torpedo, and the other former friends, and to the wife coming through the lid Both Wires often it is down the rope ming be withdrawn. After it is "-awn, if no water is in the well, it should be filled to the top of the rock with witer, and a dre wooden pine plug with holes for the wires to pass through, should be droven in as it in and a tight as possible, and allowed to swell. When the explosion takes place the water being meen pressible, and the plug being on the top will pro duce the same effect wift the well were plugge Another add integt passessed by this me ins to firm, the torpedoes is that my number of them may be exploded at our and the same instrut, in construct wille. should think. Been and water must be a miserable compound.

—Gen. Napler his made a speciel to the unhappy "Queen's Own," to incling the affair at Radgeway. Hentifibates the flucture entirely to alleged blunder of the burgler, and said: "Had it not been for his unfortunate misrake—had the advance been sounded instead of the retreat—you would, single-builded, have driven the Fenlansbefore you that day." Butly for Naport. The "Queen's Own" have got a first-class-to ampeter, whatever may be said of the bugler.
